SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONS ON REMANDED QUESTION

This capital habeas corpus case is before the Court on remand from the Sixth Circuit for this Court to determine in the first instance whether the Petition herein is a second or successive petition such that Sheppard needs permission from the Sixth Circuit to proceed. In a Report and Recommendations filed July 3, 2012, I recommended the Court conclude the Petition was not a second or successive petition and this Court therefore had jurisdiction to proceed without prior permission of the Circuit Court (Doc. No. 19). The Warden has filed Objections (Doc. No. 21), Petitioner has responded (Doc. No. 26), and Judge Frost has recommitted the remanded question for additional analysis after consideration of the Objections (Doc. No. 25).

Upon reconsideration, I am not persuaded that the original Report is in error.

First, the Warden argues that because this Petition challenges the same judgment as Sheppard's prior Petition in 1:00-cv-493, it must be a second or successive petition because of the Supreme Court's decision in Magwood v. Patterson, 561 U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 2788, 177 L. Ed. 2d 592 (2010). What Magwood held was that a second-in-time petition attacking the same conviction as a prior petition was not second or successive because it attacked a new judgment in the case. That does not logically imply that a second-in-time petition which attacks the same judgment is a second or successive petition. The Supreme Court explicitly said it was not deciding that question, as the Warden admits. (Objections, Doc. No. 21, at PageID 246, citing Magwood, 130 S. Ct. 2799, and noting the Supreme Court's citation at that point of Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 487 (2000); Stewart v. Martinez-Villareal, 523 U.S. 637, 643 (1998); and Panetti v. Quarterman, 551 U.S. 930, 945 (2007)). While the Supreme Court may eventually decide that question in the way the Warden suggests, it has not done so as yet.

Secondly, the Warden objects to the Magistrate Judge's acceptance of Sheppard's ripeness argument, to wit, that the claims made in the Petition could not have been presented prior to adoption by the State of Ohio of its current lethal injection protocol on September 18, 2011. For the reasons set forth in the Report and Recommendations on the Warden's Motion to Dismiss (Doc. No. 28), the Court should find that Sheppard's claims made in the Petition here arose after judgment was final in the prior case and therefore this is not a second or successive petition.
